Text without definition lists is rendered as regular paragraph, filling the whole width of the document. Often used in the "About" block, where you can briefly list your specialties.

- List items do a line break by definition.
- Just make sure they are separated by a blank line from the previous and next paragraphs.

But regular consecutive paragraphs (newline was here, where'd it go?) get concatenated into one unless backslash is used.

Ending a line with a backslash forces a line break.
